

A MOVE FOR HARMONY.

Mr. Hill and His Managers Here to Win Over Grace and Shepard Factions.

THEIR SUPPORT NECESSARY.

Hint Thrown Out that Hill May Not Accept if His Mission Fails.

LIKELY TO CALL ON GAYNOR.

Part of the Harmony Plan Is to Induce the Justice to Accept.

There is to be a strong effort made at once to harmonize the factions in the Democratic party in this city, with a view to uniting them in support of the State ticket. It is conceded that if the present situation of affairs continues for two weeks longer the damage will be irreparable.

So Mr. John Boyd Thacher, and Mr. Hill and Chairman of the State Committee Hinkley have come to town for the purpose of opening a sort of "Early-Cure" bureau, in which old political sores are to be healed by the laying on of hands. It is given out that Mr. Hill is in town on personal business, but it is hard to conceive of any more important business than that of fixing up his political fences, so that he can corral and hold the full party vote.

The talk of a third ticket and the outspoken opposition of Charles S. Fairchild, Edward W. Shepard, Oswald O. Child, and others to the nominees of the machine Convention have shown Mr. Hill's managers that their first effort must be directed towards overcoming this opposition.

So Mr. Hill is here to see and be seen. It is expected that an effort will be made to bring about meetings between Mr. Fairchild, Oswald O. Child, Mr. Shepard and Mr. Hill, or between personal representatives of the gentlemen named, on the subject of harmony. At these meetings, it is believed, particular stress will be laid on the fact that Mr. Hill is said to have made to secure fair treatment in the Convention for the Grace-Fairchild and the Shepard delegations.

From present indications an argument of this sort is likely to be met with the reply that the Senator's action in this connection was in the nature of a bluff, that the rejection of anti-machine delegates was as much cut and dried as any other part of the Convention, and that certain utterances were poured out in their behalf as a sort of bait to lure the anti-machine delegates with the intention of securing a vote for the indignity it had already been decided to inflict upon them.

Mr. Hill's friends claim to be able to prove the contrary, and some hope that they may succeed in doing so. It is said to have been hinted that the machine managers have a trump card in reserve for their last play, and that this card is Mr. Hill's refusal to accept the nomination of John Hill, and that as he is not the choice of the whole party he cannot consent to make the face as the representative of the whole.

Taking into consideration Mr. Hill's known ability as a politician, and his fine qualities, there is reason to believe that this hint, if it has been thrown out at all, is hardly to be taken seriously, and what may be expected.

"Mr. Hill would rather fight to the last ditch in the effort to secure a defeat than to surrender without a struggle," said one of his friends, "and this is the opinion of the whole party."

Altogether the fight is a mighty interesting one, and up to the present anti-machine leaders have succeeded in injecting a greater lot of distrust and doubt into the situation than has existed at this period in a similar campaign in many years.

MR. HILL'S BUSY DAY.

Receives Reports from Political Friends and Starts Downtown.

David Bennett Hill received many callers this morning in his quarters at the Hotel Normandie. Newspaper men were not admitted, but some information reached them, with Mr. Hill's consent, through his visitors.

For instance, Clerk De Freest, of the State Committee, who was with Mr. Hill for half an hour, when asked Mr. Hill's opinion of the third-ticket movement, said:

"Mr. Hill doesn't care a continental about the nomination, anyhow."

Then he added, very significantly: "And he hasn't accepted it yet."

E. L. Ridgway, brother of the District-Attorney of Kings County, James W. Ridgway, had a little chat with the Senator, but he declined to say whether or not it was in relation to an effort to win over the Shepherds.

President of the Board of Aldermen George B. McClellan also had an interview with Mr. Hill. Then came John Boyd Thacher, who was about to receive the nomination for Governor when it was given to Mr. Hill.

Other callers were Assistant District-Attorney Robert Townsend, Dr. A. E. McDonald and Gen. David W. Hill. Mr. Thacher outstayed all the rest. He arrived at 1 o'clock, and at the hotel and started downtown.

Messrs. Grace, Fairchild and Shepard, and he said it was possible that such a meeting might be brought about to-night or to-morrow.

"The Senator has finished the business upon which he came here," said Mr. Thacher, cheerfully, "and will remain in the hotel the rest of the afternoon to receive any gentlemen who may call on him."

As to the time of the formal notification of the Democratic candidates, Mr. Thacher said he was not prepared to speak definitely, but he thought it not improbable that the Committee would convene at 10 o'clock to-morrow.

INCARCERATED WHILE SANE?

Commissioner Simmons Will Investigate Mrs. Canta's Case.

Her Husband and Aunt Now Admit She Was Not Insane.

Commissioner Simmons, of the Department of Charities and Correction, said to-day that a rigid investigation would be made by his Department as to how Mrs. Susan Canta, the pretty twenty-six-year-old wife of Edward Canta, a foreman in Kinney's cigarette factory, 512 West Twenty-second street, became incarcerated in the asylum for the insane on Ward's Island.

Under the charge of going to the Carmelite Church on Sept. 16, Mrs. Canta was taken from her home, 408 West Twenty-fifth street, in a cab, to Bellevue Hospital, by her husband and her own aunt, Miss Mary McGinn, of 208 West Nineteenth street, with whom she lived before being married, since her husband died.

She was examined by Drs. Field and Wildman, the experts in insanity, then on duty at the hospital, and on the strength of their testimony a commitment was entered by a Justice in one of the city courts.

On Sept. 15, Mrs. Canta was sent to Ward's Island, under the charge of Dr. Deni, the Superintendent of the asylum. She then alleged that she had assaulted her husband, and that she had killed him. She was then committed to the asylum.

Commissioner Simmons is greatly exercised over this phase of the case, and to an "Evening World" reporter he declared that a recommendation to the proper authorities would undoubtedly be made, which may lead to the punishment of the woman.

If the story proves to be a fact, as related in a morning paper, Commissioner Simmons believes that either Canta is insane herself and is a subject for Ward's Island, or that he is guilty, with Mrs. McGinn, of a conspiracy to get rid of his wife.

Canta married his wife three years ago. They have two children, the youngest two months old. Neighbors say that Canta had been drinking heavily, and finally said he would put her away in an insane asylum. He tried to get Dr. McGinn to sign a certificate for her admission, but she refused to do so.

He said that he spoke soothingly, but she became more angry and made a blow at his head with a dog. She then caught it on his wrist, breaking it. Mrs. McGinn, who was in the room, had married him two years ago, but that he always treated her badly.

They have lived together, she says, very often. "Why, Judge, a few days ago I brought Herman Aaron, the manager of the Lithuanian, home with me. We were playing pinocle when she became so angry that she threw a pair of scissors at me."

Mrs. Aaron, who was in court, corroborated this story. "Why don't you patch up your troubles with her together?" asked his Honor.

"I'll never live with him again," burst out Mrs. McGinn. "I want him to support me."

The Judge then dismissed the assault charge, and instructed her to see Supt. Blake and get an order that she become a pauper, with the county one provided for her. She secured the requisition on which a warrant was issued the following day.

When the case was called by Justice McMahon it looked as though they had come to some agreement. Mrs. McGinn, however, was ignorant of the contents of the property between her and her husband and wife left the court-room together.

CONTESTED BY A DAUGHTER. Michael Conlan's Will Not Admitted to Probate.

Michael Conlan, who lived at 87 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, died in Gouverneur Hospital in January, 1893, leaving an estate of $50,000. A will offered for probate to-day bequeathed his daughter the contents of the Brooklyn house, and divided the balance of the property between his wife and sister.

The daughter contested the will, and alleged that her father was unconscious when the will was drawn, and that Dr. Wilson, of the Hospital, had been present while he made his cross. It was not read to him, his daughter claimed, and he was ignorant of the contents. The will was not admitted to probate.

HIS WIFE BROKE HIS WRIST.

But Mrs. Knapp Says Her Husband Was Cruel.

Withdrew Her Charge and Became Reconciled in Court.

Ralph Knapp, thirty-six years old, who boasted that he was a cousin of the Aronsons, of the Casino, living with his mother at 208 East Eighty-second street, has flouted twice as a criminal at the Yorkville Police Court with the past five days, each time at the instance of his wife, Eleanor.

Their trouble lies in the difference of religion, she being a Christian. Mrs. Knapp resides at 466 West Fifty-seventh street. Their difficulties were first ventilated before Justice Meade last Friday.

She then alleged that he had assaulted her, and that she had killed him. She was then committed to the asylum.

Commissioner Simmons is greatly exercised over this phase of the case, and to an "Evening World" reporter he declared that a recommendation to the proper authorities would undoubtedly be made, which may lead to the punishment of the woman.
